My philosophy as a marriage and family therapist includes an eclectic approach with a primary focus on cognitive behavioral therapy. I approach my work with a willingness to be flexible in developing a plan that is mutually agreed upon to help my clients reach their goals.

These approaches are presented and utilized within the parameters of my Code of Ethics, which I am required to adhere to in order to advance the welfare and best interests of my clients. As a Licensed therapist I am required to participate in and complete on going continuing education in order to uphold my license. I do this on a bi annual basis.

As required by law I will safeguard your confidential information. I will act professionally and perform to my highest ability. Your welfare as my client is of primary importance.

My fee for therapy is $125 per 50 minute appointment.

My Masters Degree was obtained from Pepperdine University in 1999. My training comes from a vast array of settings including: AIDS Project Los Angeles, Pepperdine Community Counseling Center, Children and Family Services Agencies and Lastly in Private Practice.
